Me to Computer Technology

Hi all,

I want to share a great internet resource. I've just made my first lesson for the Desktop Publishing class in ED Puzzle. This software allows to differentiate instructions for students with different needs and also allows to check students' progress during the lesson.

Here is the article on Edutopia, where you can read about this internet resource and other softwares that can be used for education:

Have a good day!

Your link was cut off so it isn't the full address and it won't work.

This is an amazing site! You can search for videos that are already made, clip and add narration as well as questions for students to answer if you would like. So easy and great for students!
